Living on less than 5 dinars a day, mapping the poverty rate in Tunisia

In several districts of the Kasserine governorate, one out of two inhabitants lives below the poverty line. However, in El Menzah, a wealthy suburb of Tunis, only one out of 500 people is classified as poor.

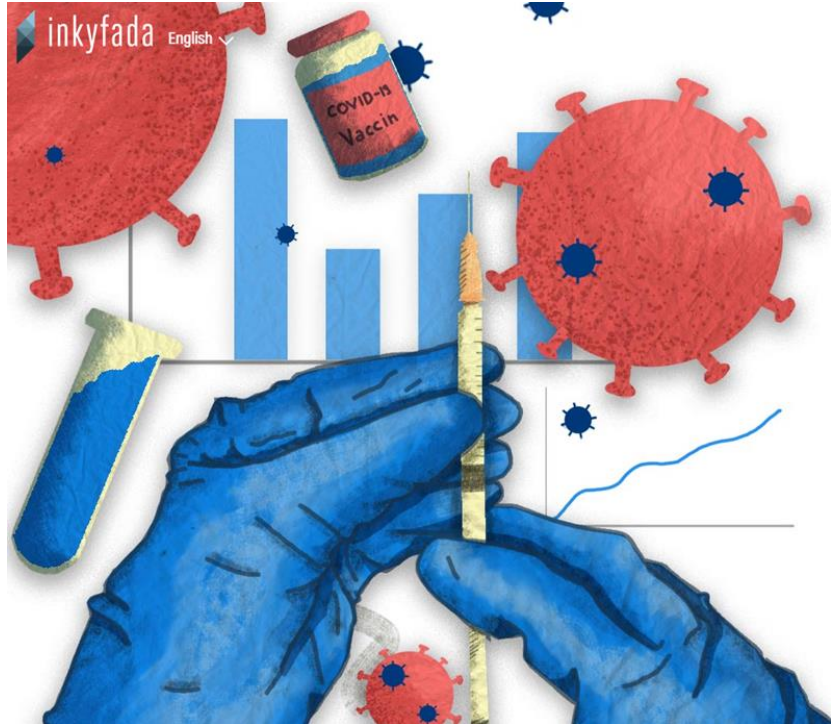

How can such discrepancies be explained? To better understand the situation, inkyfada analysed and mapped the available data regarding poverty rates in Tunisia. Using these numbers, it is possible to identify the distribution of inequalities within the population.

These inequalities can be caused by different factors, such as unemployment, level of education or access to public services. Inkyfada identified several significant correlations by comparing the various data.

Number of deaths caused by police violence, since 2011

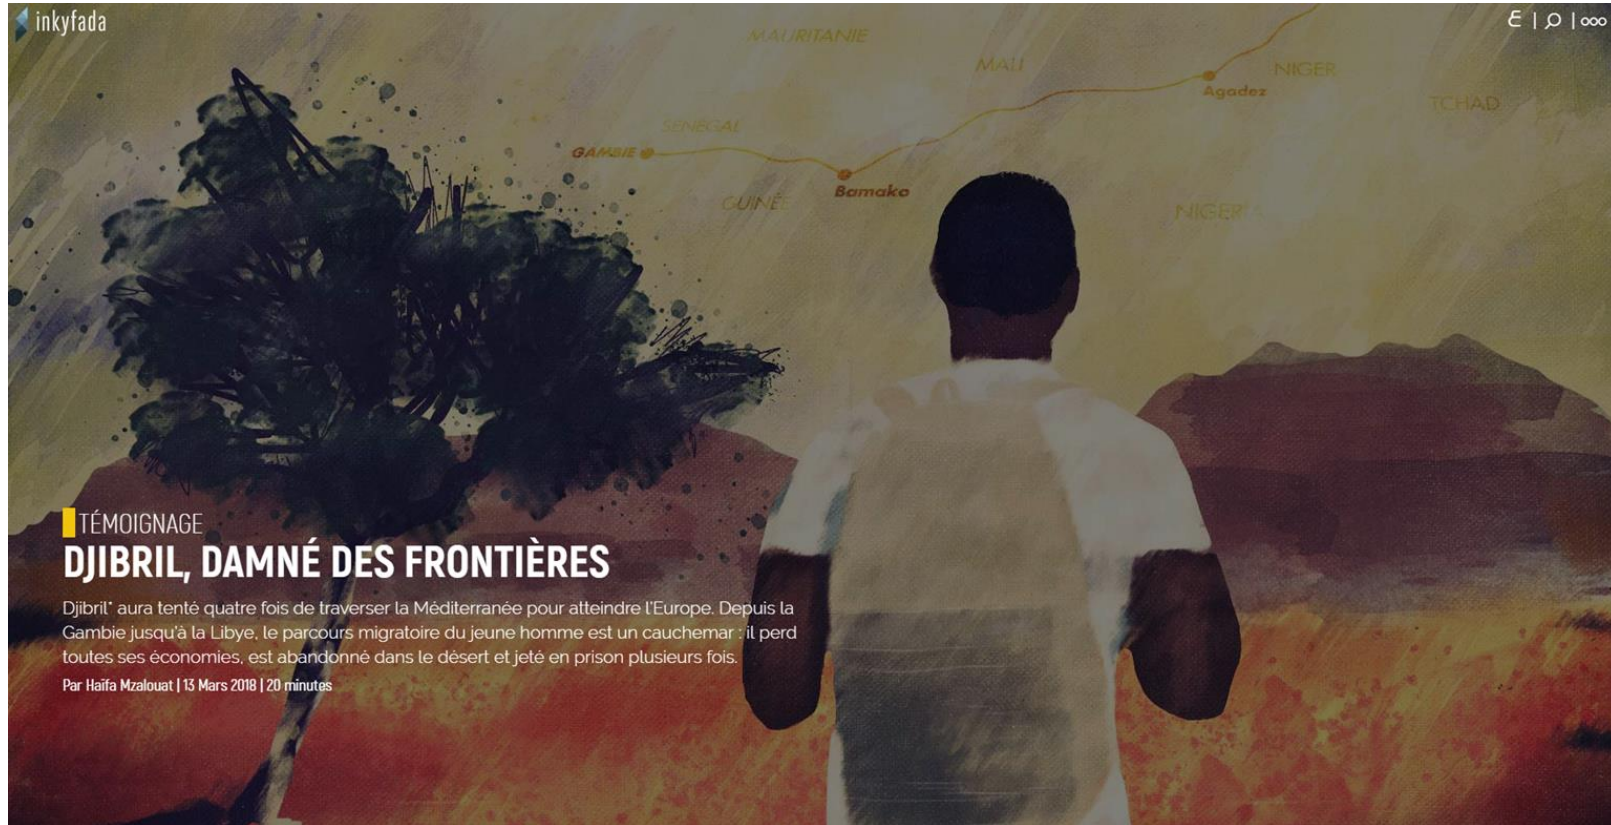

Numerous Tunisians have lost their lives as a result of excessive police violence. Virtually none of these victims have had access to a fair trial. Instead, evidence and testimonies are lost in the intricate web of the judicial system. Most of these cases have yet to pass the preliminary research or investigation stage, reflecting a recurring pattern of impunity. In this article, inkyfada attempts to identify cases of police violence in which Tunisians have lost their lives, without those responsible being held accountable.

The content of this list is not conclusive and will be periodically updated. Inkyfada is continuously developing this interactive content, with the aim of providing an exhaustive list of police violence that has led to the death of the victims.
