We gamify journalism to engage next generation news audiences

Media companies are facing a fundamental challenge: the questioning of their legitimacy. What they need is to reaffirm their usefulness within democratic societies, by strengthening the bond with their audience and even creating new connections with parts of the population that have become distant.

Mission and Objectives

NewsArcade aims to tackle the challenge of media companies by bringing together journalism and news consumption closely by means of gamification. By creating the necessary tools and a new format for gamified news, that can tell a comprehensive 360 degrees news story the project will aim to improve citizens’ skills in news literacy, build critical thinking skills and thus strengthen the position of media outlets. The project leverages creativity and gamification in order to create a powerful engagement tool that can tackle disinformation by allowing the public to acquire the necessary skills for spotting fake news and better understanding how stories can be manipulated willingly or unwillingly.

Objectives:

- Design and develop a new interactive news format based on game design
- Experiment, pilot and evaluate the format with media stakeholders
- Investigate the cross-scale upscaling of the format
- Communicate and disseminate the project results to stakeholders
- Assess the market potential and ensure-long term sustainability
